Workshop Overview

Technology has transformed modern day classrooms and pedagogic practices. The opportunities created by new educational tools, pedagogic practices and innovation have led to rapid evolution in the growth of cross-disciplinary learning possibilities in higher institutions. The traditional 'chalk & talk' teaching method is fast getting phased out, making way to the concept of smart classrooms, virtual learning and experiential learning. With the rapid democratization of education several networks of Open Educational Resources are proliferating. Leveraging on this, the workshop aims to equip faculty to integrate OERs into an LMS, to weave them into a pedagogical framework of their choosing. LMS and OERs offer a great range of learning opportunities and scenario for both facilitators and learners, whether it be a blended learning model, group differentiation, or self-paced individualization.
